Experience Highlights

Kaiyuan Temple

Kaiyuan Temple is a 1,000-year-old Buddhist temple and an important religious site in southern Fujian. It is the largest Buddhist temple in the province, first built during the Tang Dynasty. The temple is famous for its beautiful stone carvings and long history. Its East and West Pagodas are well-known landmarks of Quanzhou and have stood for centuries.

YanTaiShan

Known as Fuzhou's "Museum of Western-style Buildings," this area is an important witness to the city's modern history. The European-style houses and old buildings make you feel like you've stepped back into the 19th century. Once home to foreign consulates, banks, and churches, it reflects Fuzhou's rich cultural heritage.

Yunshuiyao Tulou

A UNESCO World Heritage Site, Yunshuiyao is a great example of Hakka tulou (earthen buildings). It features some of the most famous tulou in Fujian, such as Hegui Building and Huaiyuan Building, showing the wisdom and rich culture of the Hakka people.
