AIX EN PROVENCE-LES BAUX DE PROVENCE LES CARRIÈRES DE LUMIÈRES

Aix-en-Provence, the former capital of Provence, is a medieval city with boulevards, fountains and magnificent houses, the most "metropolitan" area of Provence. It has been the cultural, economic and intellectual centre of Provence since the 12th century and the home of the talented painter Paul Cézanne.

Les Baux, perched on a limestone cliff 245 meters high, is an exquisite mountain town in Provence. Built in 950 A.D., the entire town was carved entirely out of stone and still retains its medieval style. The town's church, hospital, town hall and stores are all centuries old.

Next visit Les Carrières de Lumières, which is an "immersive digital experience" art centre. The exhibition has not only caused an international sensation, but also started a global trend of immersive digital art.
