The Legend of Yangzhou Fried Rice

Originating from Han Canal boatmen in the Spring and Autumn period, its foundation was laid when Emperor Yang of the Sui Dynasty brought the palace's "Golden Flake Rice" to Yangzhou. During the Qing Dynasty, Prefect Yi Bingzhou upgraded it into a luxurious assorted rice with shrimp and ham. Later, Chinese chefs brought it worldwide. With the master technique of "gold wrapping silver," it has become a globally acclaimed international staple.
